

ATFA Diploma of Timber Flooring Technology - ‘Application’

The ATFA Diploma of Timber Flooring Technology is designed to recognise the training effort and learning acquired by completing a range of core training programs that ATFA conducts on a regular basis.

The Diploma is an industry specific qualification and industry recognised, the ATFA Diploma of Timber Flooring Technology itself is not a Government recognised qualification.

As ATFA is the peak industry body for timber flooring in Australasia and consumers more often than not find contractors through the ATFA website, we believe this industry qualification will provide considerable advantage to those who complete all the components.

The benefits for those achieving the ATFA Diploma of Timber Flooring Technology are:

- Benefits and learning directly acquired through the training itself
- Better on job performance and faster job completion rates
- Better job site analysis and problem resolution
- Recognition in the ATFA Find a Member website section, noting Diploma achievement against your name
- The resulting credential greatly assisting ATFA accreditation
- An ATFA Diploma of Timber Flooring certificate for display
- Self-promotion that you have this credential.

See the ATFA training schedule for when these programs are next available and the most up to date offerings (noting those listed below may change from time to time).
